It has been a long time since we were shut down due to weather. This time I must say the weather was bad leaving many people with out mobility. While the roads remained drivable the driveways and lanes to do the feeding were very slick and remain so even today as the tempature drops down into the single digits. With corn prices spiking and cattle futures down it may not have been such a bad thing. Hopefully by next week this will all shake out and we can get back to business.
