The last Monday of July 2007 will be a day I never forget. Harold Garrett, a man who has worked for our family, for as long as I can remember, has decided to step down and retire from his position at F & T Livestock Market. He is a man who is greatly admired and respected by our family, and especially me. I have and will always have a deep and profound respect for him. It also amazes me by how well respected he is by his customers and clients; their respect for him is undaunting. He treated all of his customers as friends, and would go the extra mile for any of them.

Every sale day, he would be the first one here and the last to leave. He is one of the hardest working men I have ever known, but he also loved to have fun. Many of his customers, I am sure, could tell you story after story of the times when he would come around to visit them.

I would like to share one with you that happened to me. When I was a young boy about 10-12 years old, I worked around the barn (I think I was just in the way). My dad ask me to ride with Harold to Hunnewell to look at some cattle. So off we went. Just south of Hunnewell, we stopped to look at a customers cattle. As Harold has always done, we went to the house and I had a soda and Harold and the customer had a drink (or two). It took a long time for Harold to convince this client to bring us his cattle (several hours). When we finally left, Harold was concerned that my father was going to be upset with him for keeping me so long. As we went through Hunnewell, there was a ferris wheel along with a carnival and an excuse was born. When we returned, Harold told Ronnie the story of how I wanted to ride this ferris wheel and when we got to the top, it broke down and took over an hour for us to get down. Of course he did not believe it. So dad asked me and I told him just what Harold had instructed me to. From that day on Harold and I have enjoyed a very close relationship and many more road trips together.

Harold, I hope you enjoy your retirement because you have earned it. Thanks for being there for our family, and me for all these years. From all of us at F & T, good luck and may God bless you with good health all the rest of your days.

Jim Browning
